RISKS in Wilderness Locations:

There are certain risks inherent with this and any trip into the wilderness. The camp water is untreated, well water and we recommend bringing drinking water. There are large bodies of water on the property. There is occasional traffic from gravel and logging trucks. There is no landline phone or internet on the property; although cell service is usually, but not always, available. This location is distant from medical assistance. Each guest should seriously consider his/her health and physical condition and consult with a physician, if appropriate, prior to accepting these risks and conditions.

Each guest agrees to accept personal responsibility for any and all health and safety risks associated with this rental in a wilderness area. Each hunting guest agrees to hold a valid Maine hunting license prior to arrival at the camp. Each guest, individually, agrees to indemnify and hold harmless Kingdom Land LLC and its manager from any accident, disease, or physical, mental or emotional ailment that arises, for whatever reason, during the duration of their stay at this backcountry camp.
